While this debauching and corrupting work has been going on in the national mind, great material results have been attained by the Slave Power. It has subjugated and enslayed rast territories upon which an Empire may rise, and which ought to have been devoted to freedom. It has waged two or three Indian wars and one foreign war, the last of which cost an hundred millions of money, and the live of more than twenty-five thousand men, solely that its area might be extended, and that its influence in the government might be strengthened and preserved. It has corrorlolled every national Administration since Jackson went out of power; and it has guthered to itself all the benefits of government is called the position of a suppliant for what ahe might have demanded as a right. During all the years since the organization of the government is has not paid a dollar, on account of its chatels, into the common breasury, though it has death of the mode more secure. Is not all this true? Who will point out the item in which we err? from position to position, protesting always and always surrendering, until, at last, we find that a revolution more comprehensive than any hostile arms could have effected, than any hostile arms could have effected, has been accomplished. The entire policy of the government has been reversed. The national conscience has been thoroughly debauched, and Slavery instead of being an accident of our national life, to be repaired by labor and sacrifice, has become its controlling power. It is the master of the Republic, ruling it with the airs of an autocrat.

We ask those who are secessionists in the North, or apo'. South, to take the history as it is, cease their gabbling in generalities, estimate slavery as it was in 1800, and compare it with what it is now. Let them tell what victories it has gained, what territories it has conquered, what legislation it has forced, what new power it has acquired; and then say where the appressions of the North begin and what in sixty years they have extential.

What a beautiful mess of stuff the old sensation Satanic opens forth. In one breath it blows cold; the disunion fever is being allayed; a "conservative reaction is taking place," and harmony and good will between the North and South will soon be restored. The Southern Kannas Difficulty.
[Correspondence of the Leavenworth Times.]

Leavenworm, Nov. 25, 1860.

DEAR TRIES:—There is but little said here about the late troubles in Southern Kannas. All good elitisens agree that the high handed violence in that section is to be lamented. There has been no expression here of a public nature in regard to the difficulties. The troops from Fort Riley were at Topeka last night, en routs for Leavenworth.

The Hon. Rash Rimore is holding court here. Col. Delahay and Judge Johnson, of your city, have just sarrived to-night, to attend the Court.

It is the opinion of some persons here, that when Gen. Harney gets into the region of the last disorder—the will find all quiet, and that those persons who may feel guilty of violating the laws of the land will be at a respectful distance. the laws of the land will be at a respectful distance.

Half-past 9 o'clock P. M.—I have just been informed that the reports of the summary hanging in Southeastern Kansas are fully confirmed by a gentleman direct from Port Scott, and that Montgomery and his men declare their purpose to resist all the troops that may be sent to that region. Whether he will do so or not, I cannot tell, nor can I give any opinion worthy of reliance. We would have supposed that John Brown could not have and firmly maintained in the future in all parts of Kansas—that the law may be firmly administered—that the impocent shall find security, and the guilty be brought to justice—and at whatever cost, the reign of terror should forever cease in Kansas. I predict that these troubies will delay our admission into the Union, and postpone our land grants for our railroads in Kansas, I trust the best interest of Kansas may not be treated with neglect in consequence of the name which lawless violence in that unfortunate section may scene for her.

Business of the New Kork Post Office

[From the Cleveland Herald.]

The Jersey City left Toledo on Friday morning for Dunkirk, with a load of flour and pork. On Friday noon she was seen off Kelly's Island, bound down, and making good progress. During the gale of Friday and Saturday she went ashore two miles from Long Point, and became a total wreck. The telegraph reports that six teen of her crew and one passenger are lost. The saved are Capt. Monreau, two irrements one wheelsman and one passenger, named Randall. Five bodies have been picked up. Those saved report that nearly all reached the shore, but perished in the snow storm. The two engineers were found frozen to death three hundred yards from the lighthouse, locked in each other's a runs. The cargo is strewed along the beach for miles. Capt. Menreau reached Port Dover on Tuesday. Captain Menreau will be remembered as the briay of an arm who some years since, when the brig Omar Pasha was wrecked on the West Pier, in a furious storm of wind and snow, risked his own life in saving the half frozen crew of the brig. The First Engineer, Mr. Manchester, was a single man, and has a mother and two sisters in Western New York, who depended on him for support. A few weeks since he went to the Insurance Agency of G. A. Tridaie, and took out a life insurance policy for $2000, for the benefit of his mother.

The Matel, Langley, was from Buffalo. These are all the names that we could ascertain.

The Jercy City was of 633 tons, built by G. W. Jones at this port in 1855, owned by S. D. Caldwell, Dunkirk, was valued at $25,000, and rated A. 2. She was a fine boat, and her officers and crew could not be surpassed.

From a gentleman who left Anamosa yesterday morning, we obtained the following account of a case of arson, with the subsequent arrest of certain parties concerned, and the sensation cansed thereby in that locality:

It appears that a man named Fay, living near Wyoming, had become exasperated at a constable named Sherrill, for the reasons, as rumor that it, that the latter had levied on the former's property, and had given refuge to his wife, when Fay had beaten her, or threatened her with violence. A few nights since, Sherrill's barn was burned to the ground, and with it a large amount of hay and grain, and he rill's barn was burned to the ground, and with it a large amount of hay and grain, and five valuable horses, one of them estimated to be worth five hundred dollars, were lost. Fay having been known to threaten revence on Sherrill, suspicion at once | o n ed to him as the perpetrator of the deed, and he was taken into custody by members of a Vigilance Committee at Wyoming. In like manner, a car can be made which will move, without the aid of any animal, without incalculable impetus; such as we suppose the seythed chariots to have been which were anciently used in battle. Also, machines for flying can be made, so that a man may sit in the middle of the machine, turning an engine, by which wings artificially disposed are made to beat the air after the manner of a bird in flight. Also, an instrument, small in size, for raising and depressing almost infinite weights, than which nothing on occasion is more useful; for, with an instrument of three fingers in height, and of the same width, and of smaller bulk, a man might deliver himself and his companions from all danger of prison, and could rise or descend. Also, an instrument might be easily made by which one man could draw to himself a theusand men by force and against their will, and in like manner draw other things.
